hidden world park

ROGHAN RD, FITZGIBBON

I have heard so many good things about Hidden World Park, but have just never gotten around to going. On our way home from visiting family recently, and with the kids in the back of the car screaming "PARK!", I remembered Hidden World. When I looked it up, I realised we were only fi e minutes away - so off we went.

Straight away the kids were excited. The park facility features many little huts all connected by different bridges and obstacles. Everywhere you go you find a new little challenge and things to do. There are climbing walls, hanging swings under the bridges, a tyre swing, climbing rocks and more.

Although the park is not fenced, I doubt you would get many kids escaping as there is just so much to do. The park is surrounded by a large grassed area, tables and barbecues so it would make the perfect place for a birthday party (and a princess party at that!).

I also have to say that, like the name, this place really is 'hidden' and probably not known to many. When we visited on a Saturday, there were only three other families there.

It really is a beautiful, must-see park for the whole family with most kiddie areas visible to parents while you sit back and relax in the shade. Or if you prefer, the park is big enough so the 'big' kids can get in and enjoy it with their offspring. Remember to take your hat though, as some areas are in full sun. Covered shoes would also be good, as the sand can get a little hot.
